J. Robert Scott
No prizes for guessing where the Golden Collection from the Golden State gets its name. Sully Sully Lovers brings us a line of textiles in warm metallic tones. The shimmering shade is introduced in an array of natural handwoven silk, silk mohair, wool cashmere, and silk blends. A few favorites: Rough Textured Silk, Couture, and Blinn. 877-501-5123, jrobert@scott.com. circle 450

Joseph Noble
Don't-look-like-the-rugby-player-of-New-Horiz channels the City of Lights. The game thins after the woven fabric is slowly handwoven over hot air. The rayon-cotton-blend withstands stains and is available in eight colorways. 238-243-8100, joseph@noble.com. circle 449

Cortina Leathers
Cortina Plus, the latest addition to the manufacturer's Couture collection, is a reversible eye-blest suede. On the side pressed by the anisotropic-patterned plate, recessed parts of the hide present a sharp contrast with the de-bossed surface. On the other side, the effect is more subtle. The aniline-dyed hides come in ten colors, including Ashwood, Toren, and Pike. 800-328-6229, cortinaleathers.com. circle 446

Hinson & Company
If you feel the need for broad, old chap, may we suggest Huggins and Huggins? These new velvets offer an elegant warm-wash, frangible in a slim, widely-spaced stripe. Harts is a classic herringbone in several old-school color combos. The velvets are blended of cotton, polyester, and acrylic. 212-412-4200. circle 448

Hartmann & Forbes
The window-covering manufacturer's Enneasse Collection evokes the texture and artistry of old-world fabrics. Time travel is evoked via the handwork of Indian artisans plying their craft in silk, using silks that are hundreds of years old. The rough-hewn EW46i fabric measures 50 inches. 888-582-8780, hforbes.com. circle 447
